

JON STUART

Stillwater
Ottawa, ON

A debilitated wetland is being brought back to life. This is a next-generation landscape – inherently man-made yet wild and generative, supporting both the local ecology and the health of the water flowing across the city. At the western edge of Ottawa, squeezed between the new DND campus, the 417, a chip manufacturer and a new LRT station, a debilitated wetland is being brought back to life. It is more important than ever to shine a spotlight in these fragile waters as wetlands are under threat, putting many valuable ecosystems at risk from filling and development. These images have been celebrated by the rehabilitation project managers for capturing and communicating what they did not see outside of hydrology, species lists and project plans.

jonstuartprints.com/stillwater

